Well Enoughs

From the New York Ledger. Makeshifts are the bane of housekeeping Women who have but little means at their command are forced to make all sorts of things answer temporarily, and the consequence is that they soon drift into the habit of rushing things along, with the idea and now." And after a while their entire experience and home are filled with well enoughs. One little woman, whose ingenuity and tact go far ahead of her pocket book, has for a long time supplied her children with clothes from the cast-offs of her own adult household and her brothers, who are single men. She rips the garments, sponges and presses them and puts them away until wanted. She never nangs them in some out-of-reach clothes press, where noth and dust hold court, but, all ready for the shears, she wraps them in moth-proof the shears, she wraps them in moth-proof envelopes and feels safe about them. She has practiced until she knows just what patterns fit best, and can cut the goods to the best advantage. Little trousers and jackets, cutaways and caps some out of this stock, and ear muffs and mittens make demands for the smaller bits.

demands for the smaller bits.

It is possible for every woman to whom rigid economy is an object to become an exrigid economy is an object to become an ex-pert in making up garments for boys out of the clothing of their elders. The most im-portant requirement is a thorough under-standing of how such articles are made, and this is the best acquired by purchasing a high-class garment and studying it care-fully and intelligently. Make the new one up in precisely the same fasision, and if you feel that you can afford it, rip one-half of the one you have bought and use it as a the one you have bought and use it as a pattern. You can put it together again with very little trouble.

Politics and Society.

Mrs. Vogue-"I expect to give my third party of the season next week; of course you'll attend?"

Mrs. Shy—"I would like to very much, but I can't without offending my husband. As an influential politician, you know, he is strongly opposed to third parties."

Triple Horrors.

From Lloyd's Newspaper.

you don't drink any more, but how did you come to leave off?" Henry-"You remember the last time my nother-in-law was here?"

Benham-"Henry, I am glad to learn that

Benham—"Yes."
Henry—"Well, one night while she was here I—came home in a pretty bad shape, and saw three of her. That settled it."

It matters little what it is that you want—whether a situation or a servant—s "want" ad. in The Star will reach the person who can fill your need.
